

Carbon Neutrality in Korea

Climate change is a typical example of global public good and cannot be solved by a single country, nor can it be solved independently of the fundamental change in the 21st century. Therefore, on this occasion, I will make a short presentation on the mega trends of the 21st century and briefly introduce Korea's carbon neutrality policy. Finally, I will make some specific suggestions from the point of view of Korea, as a donor country, who could contribute to tackling climate change issues in cooperation with the international community.
